The diagram illustrates five call control actions, each with a circular icon, a green arrow icon, and a text description:

- Accepts a call/ Initiates an outgoing call: The icon shows a telephone handset with a green arrow pointing down to a call button on a device.
- Ends a call: The icon shows a telephone handset with a green arrow pointing down to a call button on a device.
- Rejects a call: The icon shows a telephone handset with a green arrow pointing down to a call button on a device, with a clock icon indicating a delay.
- Redials the last number: The icon shows a telephone handset with a green arrow pointing down to a call button on a device, with a '2x' icon indicating a double press.
- When in active call: Holds/unholds call: The icon shows a telephone handset with a green arrow pointing down to a call button on a device, with a '2x' icon indicating a double press.

A central 'OR' symbol indicates that these actions are mutually exclusive. To the right, a detailed illustration shows a hand interacting with a device's call control interface, which includes a call button, a call timer, and a call status indicator.

The diagram illustrates the correct and incorrect ways to use the New MASTER headset. It is divided into two rows. The top row shows the correct usage: a hand places the headset on a head, and the microphone is positioned correctly. The bottom row shows the incorrect usage: a hand places the headset on a head, but the microphone is positioned incorrectly. A large number '1' is in the center, indicating the first step.

The diagram is divided into four main sections illustrating the connection process:

- 2a Press & hold the mute button & insert the headset. A callout shows a headset with the text "GUEST 1-3".
- 3 The headset is inserted into the base station. A callout shows a "2x" indicator with a red and blue star icon.
- 4 Accept the GUEST headset. A callout shows a "10s" timer and a "MASTER" label. A note says "Repeat for further GUEST headsets".

Below these steps, a central diagram shows a base station with three headsets connected, labeled "MASTER", "GUEST 1", and "GUEST 2". A callout shows a "2x" indicator with a red and blue star icon.

At the bottom, a diagram shows a base station with a headset connected, labeled "MASTER". A callout shows a "2x" indicator with a red and blue star icon. A note says "Ends conference".
